Tibetan Blockprints in the Department of Rare Books and Special Collections, compiled by Leonard Zwilling. Madison, Wisconsin: The University of Wisconsin-Madison Libraries Publications Committee, 1984. 95 p.

In 1962, the Director of Libraries at the University of Wisconsin purchased a large number of Tibetan manuscripts, Mongolian blockprints, Tibetan blockprints, and volumes in Western languages from the estate of Professor Ferdinand Diederich Lessing (1882-1961). Except for the books in Western languages which were made part of the general collection, the Tibetan and Mongolian materials have remained in the Department of Rare Books, uncatalogued and unorganized, until now. Dr. Zwilling has so far completed the task of organizing and cataloguing the Tibetan blockprints, approximately seventy percent of which are devotional works, prayers and rituals. The rest are divided between canonical literature, biography and history, didactic works, lexicography, bibliography, and indexes. Since most of these works were printed during the early part of the twentieth century in Peking, they represent most of the important authors in the dGe-lugs-pa tradition, the Tibetan Buddhist tradition patronized by the Ch'ing emperors. Dr. Zwilling points out that this collection is an important resource for the study of Tibetan Buddhist cult and literature, as well as for that of Tibetan printing and publishing.

In this valuable catalogue, Dr. Zwilling has included physical descriptions (number of folios, size of folios, dimensions of the printed field and number of lines of text on one side of an average folio, distinctive decorations, ornamentations, etc.); concise statements of the works' subjects in English or Sanskrit; the works' authors; and any other pertinent information. The items are catalogued according to Tibetan alphabetical order, with each item given a control number by which it may be readily accessed. There is also an author index, a general classification of titles, a classification of deities addressed in rituals, prayers and devotional works, a Sanskrit title index, and a Mongolian title index.

Anyone interested in purchasing this catalogue may contact the Acquisitions Department, 324 Memorial Library, University of Wisconsin, 728 State Street, Madison, WI, 53706 USA. The cost is $1.00 to U.W. System purchasers, and $4.00 to others.
