FRANCES A. YATES FELLOWSHIPS

Dame Frances Yates, who died on 29 September 1981, generously bequeathed her residuary estate to found a research Fellowship or Fellowships in her name at the Warburg Institute. Fellows' interests may lie in any aspect of cultural and intellectual history but, other things being equal, preference will be given to those whose work is concerned with those areas of the medieval and Renaissance encyclopedia of knowledge to which Dame Frances herself made such distinguished contributions.

There are two kinds of award, long- and short-term. The number and duration of awards will vary according to the money available in any given year. The Fellowships will be advertised annually in October. Short-listed candidates will be interviewed in January, and, if successful, will be expected to take up their Fellowships on the succeeding 1 October if long-term, or as soon as possible in the succeeding academic year if short-term.

The Fellowships are intended primarily for scholars under the age of 35, who should have completed at least two years' research towards the doctorate. Fellows will be expected to put their knowledge at the disposal of the Institute, by presenting their work in lectures or seminars, or by contributing to the Institute's teaching for the M.Phil. degree, or by advising the Library and Photographic Collection, or by a combination of all three. The closing date for applications will be 15 November in any year. Further details are available on request.
