All Neo-Lithics issues from 1994 onwards can be downloaded from the Neo-Lithics section at www.exoriente.org/downloads/neolithics.php. Most hard-copy issues are available upon order.

ex oriente memberships: Please, contact Gary Rollefson, chairman of ex oriente, to apply for membership: rollefgo@whitman.edu (annual membership fee: 40 Euro for employed members, 15 Euro for students/unemployed members; includes Neo-Lithics hardcopies upon request).

Submission Guidelines

Choice of co-editor: Authors may choose a co-editor to facilitate or coach her/his contribution. Co-editors may appoint reviewers and/ or coaches for contributions and invite for contributions.

Deadlines: There are no deadlines. Submissions are reviewed, edited, layouted, and appear online (free open-access downloads with doi's) within months, provided that: Submissions follow the guidelines, are edited by a native speaker, are delivered ready for the final layout, and were accepted and reviewed by co-editors. A complete annual issue of Neo-Lithics is closed in December/ January and published online in the early new year.

Proviso: Submissions will be rejected by co-editors if they are not language-edited by a native speaker or ignore in parts or fully the formal standards of Neo-Lithics (Author Guidelines: cf. https://www.exoriente.org/guidelines.pdf), or have illustrations with insufficient resolution (cf. below).

Texts: in WORD without formatting; for the general style of text, bibliography, and captions, consult this issue or the Author Guidelines at <http://www.exoriente.org/guidelines>. Please keep references to a minimum. Thematic contributions should have abstracts of less than 200 words and 4-5 keywords.

Illustrations: Figures etc. should be submitted as individual EPS, TIFF or JPEG files with high resolutions. Minimum resolutions are for: line drawings: 1200dpi, grey-scale illustrations: 600dpi, colour photos: 400dpi. Illustrations have to be submitted as separate files and must not be embedded in the text file. Please, send a hard copy of the manuscript in case of complex contributions. Illustration authorships have to be acknowledged in the captions by the names of the photo's or graph's author and the project (e.g. Drawing: S. Stefanisko; Eastern Jafr A.P.). If requested by the co-editors, authors are obliged to present their submissions with formal letters of agreement by copyright owners if they use illustrations, texts, materials, or ideas from other publications or oral presentations or obtain any material from sources that are not their own.

Policies: ex oriente publications respect UN resolutions, the project permits of antiquities departments, and/ or the rights of funding institutions. ex oriente Publishers do not publish data obtained in occupied territories nor foster the publication of field data not covered by a permit. ex oriente Publishers may reject or re-negotiate submissions containing maps, names or contents with political meaning, e.g. debated state borders; rather, common geographical names (e.g. of cities, towns, wadis/rivers, or landscape names) should help orientation on maps.

Copyrights: From 2018, copyrights remain with ex oriente and the authors. Neo-Lithics authors receive a PDF file of their individual contributions and are free to circulate it upon publication.

Online Publication of Neo-Lithics: Once available, please find individual contributions as well as complete issues of Neo-Lithics from 1994 at <https://www.exoriente.org/downloads/neolithics.php> or also (from 2021) at <https://journals.ub.uni-heidelberg.de/index.php/nl/issue/archive>
