

The Fate of Antiquities in the Nazi Era

A Collaboration of the Getty Research Institute and the Zentralinstitut für Kunstgeschichte

Ed. Irene Bald Romano

Table of Contents

Forematter

Foreword

Gail Feigenbaum and Sandra van Ginhoven (Getty Research Institute, Los Angeles)

Foreword

Christian Fuhrmeister (Zentralinstitut für Kunstgeschichte, Munich)

Foreword

Hermann Parzinger (Stiftung Preußischer Kulturbesitz, Berlin)

Preface

Irene Bald Romano (University of Arizona, Tucson; Guest Editor)

Introduction

Antiquities in the Nazi Era: Contexts and Broader View

Irene Bald Romano (University of Arizona, Tucson)

Articles

Collecting Classical Antiquities among the Nazi Elite

Irene Bald Romano (University of Arizona, Tucson)

The Role of Antiquities between Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany: Diplomatic Gifting, Legal and Illegal Trades

Daria Brasca (Università degli Studi di Udine, Udine)

Göring's Collection of Antiquities at Carinhall

Laura Puritani (Zentralarchiv, Staatliche Museen zu Berlin)

Stolen and Returned: The Marble Statue of Philippe from Samos

Alexandra Kankeleit (Freie Universität, Berlin)

Export Regulations and the Role of Ancient Objects in the German List of Nationally Important Artworks

Maria Obenaus (Deutsches Zentrum Kulturgutverluste, Magdeburg)

The Annihilation of the German Numismatic Market during the Nazi Era, with Some Observations on the Countermeasures Adopted by Jewish Ancient Coin Dealers

Emanuele Sbardella (Technische Universität, Berlin)

The Patronage of Berlin's Egyptian Museum by German-Jewish Press Tycoon Rudolf Mosse (1843–1920) and the Sequestration of His Art Collection during the Third Reich

Thomas L. Gertzen (Freie Universität, Berlin) and Jana Helmbold-Doyé (Ägyptisches Museum – Georg Steindorff – Universität Leipzig)

The Antiquities Trade during the German Occupation of France, 1940–1944

Mattes Lammert (Technische Universität, Berlin)

“Unclaimed“ Artworks Entrusted to French Museums after World War II: The Case of Near Eastern Art and Antiquities

Anne Dunn-Vaturi (Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York), François Bridey (Musée du Louvre, Paris; French Consulate, New York), and Gwenaëlle Fellingier (Musée du Louvre, Paris)

The Fate of the Antiquities Collection of Izabela Działyńska (née Czartoryska)

Inga Głuszek (Nicolaus Copernicus University, Toruń) and Michał Krueger (Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań)

Object Case Studies

A Case Study in Plunder and Restitution: Three Ancient Sculptures from the Lanckoroński Collection

Victoria S. Reed (Museum of Fine Arts, Boston)

A Goddess of the Night, a Roman Gem, and the Bachstitz Gallery

Claire L. Lyons (J. Paul Getty Museum, Los Angeles)